TUESDAY, DECEMBER 28.

BY E. A. K. HACKETT.

DELPHOS, and not Bluffton, has secured the location of the great narrow gauge railroad shops.

THE Marion Democrat nominates Mr. S. Friend, of Grant county, for doorkeeper of the house.

OUR newly elected governor is soon to wed Miss Stone, a lady well known in Washington society for the last two seasons.

GOVERNOR-ELECT PORTER is mentioned by his friends for secretary of the treasury under Garfield. Mind you, mentioned by his friends.

THE Indianapolis Journal and the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times concur in the statement that Hayes is appointing anti-Conkling men to office in New York at the instance of the president-elect.

"GATH" is authority for the statement that the New York World was recently sold to Jay Gould for $250,000. Besides this, Gould is known to have a controlling interest in the New York Tribune, and so is not without an organ in each of the two most powerful of existing political parties.

It is worthy of notice that while the Jews are being persecuted in some parts of Germany, some of them are receiving distinguished honors in other countries. Mr. Goshen, the Irish banker, who has just performed important diplomatic services for the British at Constantinople, is to be made an English peer.

YESTERDAY evening's Post's financial writer says the dividends which will be paid by corporations out of the profits of the last six months will probably exceed in amount anything on record, all classes of business having been very profitable. Propositions for these payments will of course have a tendency to make the loan market very active this week.

THAT ancient mariner of the Wash-bash, and late secretary of the navy, Hon. R. P. Thomson (sometimes called "Dick Thompson" for short), has accepted the presidency of the American Branch of the Panama canal, with a salary of $25,000 per year. However this may be for the canal company, there can be no doubt of its being a good thing for the old mariner. Better to be born lucky than rich—and, though luck did not strike him till somewhat late in life, we are glad to see her strike him hard now that she has set in on him. The "old salt" sails well.

It is seriously proposed by the Loganport Journal and the senator-elect from Cass county to reduce the number of members of the legislature one half the present number in each House. Though other reasons are assigned for the change, its real purpose is to create a pretext for re-districting the state in such a way as to enable the republican party, if possible, to perpetuate its present accidental ascendancy in the legislature. Once more in control of both senate and house, after being out of it for several years, they propose to run no avoidable risks for the future, but to do all that in them lies to perpetuate their power. It is not pretended that the existing arrangement of senatorial and representative districts is either unfair or partisan. Nothing of this sort is charged against it. The only trouble with it seems to be that it does not give any ground to hope for continued republican success in future elections.

The objection to the present number of one hundred and fifty senators and representatives, when stated in plain terms, seems to amount to this, viz: That there are too many inconpetent men among them. This is the whole statement of the argument for a change of the number. The "advocates of the change seem to forget that the proportion of competent to incompetent members will remain the same in a legislature of seventy-five members as it is in one of an hundred and fifty. We conclude, therefore, that it is not for bettering the general make-up of the legislature in the points in which the Journal charges it with weakness; that the change of number is proposed but for a purely partisan advantage. If they really mean to strike at the incompetency of members they should have the courage to say so, and propose some standard of qualification that will save them from the like trouble in the future in the reduced number they ask for.

THE CIRCUIT RIDER.

Methodist Ministry in Indiana Thirty-seven Years Ago.

With Elder Reuben D. Robinson time has indeed been generous, for while something like the rose of youth yet lingers upon his cheek, he may justly be considered one of the fathers of the Methodist church in Indiana. After graduating from the University of Greencastle, he chose the profession of medicine, but early became more concerned with the spiritual than physical ill of man; applied for and obtained a license, entering in 1845 upon the duties of a Methodist minister, with the exception of a few years of college professorship, zealously followed.

The first circuit to which he was assigned comprised the county of Tipton, a part of Howard, a part of Carroll, a part of Clinton and a part of Boone. There lacked a great deal of being an inhabitant to every square mile of territory, and the settlements were only connected by blazed trails.

In a brief interview with a Sentinel representative yesterday—brief because Elder Robinson is now doing all the work that devolves upon the head of the Kokomo conference, and because he was busy shaping a sermon to be delivered in Peru on Friday evening—he talked of the olden time, and read entries in his journal, made in 1846. This conversation was in the library of his residence, in this city, at the corner of New Jersey and North streets.

The salary of a Methodist minister in those days was $100 a year. That was the amount he expected to receive, and he was fortunate enough to collect $80. His expense, he says, was scarcely nothing; he was a mere boy and at home everywhere in the neighborhood. The people had an abundance of everything but money, and that is an article for which they had but very little use. The streams yielded fish, the forests game, wild fruit and even an abundance of honey. Until the railroads came the popular wants were decidedly primitive. That was before the day of store clothes. In the use of the spinning wheel, every woman was proficient, and the hand looms had a place in every thrifty household.

There were no church buildings in that section of country at that day. Service was held in the various houses of the neighborhood, and when the weather was at all favorable the congregations were immense, the people coming, old and young, a distance of ten miles in every direction. A walk of four miles to a Hoosier of that day was nothing.

Not long ago, the Elder says, a venerable woman arose in class meeting and said that the first time she ever saw the presiding elder, he was then quite a young man, preaching in a house in which there was neither door nor window. He stood in the chimney corner, and the only light by which to read came through the roof. Elder Robinson remembered the place, and at once recognized the good old sister.

Indoor service was only known during the winter. In summer the woods offered a better place for such speaking. Groves have been the scene of the strongest religious meetings ever conducted. Much of Wesley's and Whitfield's success may properly be attributed to the fact that they spoke in the open air.

There was not a power press in the world at that day. The newspaper was not a daily or weekly visitor then as now; the preacher and the school teacher were the only popular instructors.

The elder read a minute from his journal performed on horseback from Frankfort, Clinton county, in '46, to witness a session of the legislature. He noted the meeting of Dr. Evans, who has since served as governor of Colorado, then representative of Tippecanoe, with whom he was acquainted, having been born and reared near Lafayette, and Governor-elect Albert G. Porter, with whom he was a school-mate. The elder devoted six days to the study of this deliberative body, and then started for home. Upon the way he fell in with a New Yorker, who seems to have been a gentleman of only tolerable intelligence, but a copious flow of profanity. He was disgusted with the people of Indiana; their ignorance he thought intolerable, and the corn-bread upon which they fattened he abominated. The stranger believed the elder a Quaker—a belief that was not opposed. But for his vulgar oaths he might have proven a more acceptable traveling companion. At last the elder, annoyed beyond endurance, demanded that he define and analyze the word damn. Soon after this they parted.

The elder also read an account of a visit to an Indian town from the city of Kokomo. That was also in the winter of 1846. Snow covered the ground, but he rightly judged the quality of land from the timber. He remarked the stately walnut, oak, poplar and sugar tree. After wandering for some time he struck a blazed trail, and made the Indian town without much difficulty. It was a remnant of the Miami tribe, and the chief, once fully persuaded that he had not come for the purpose of buying or selling, but purely out of curiosity, received him with great hospitality, and every courtesy that the camp afforded to his service. He describes the dress of the Indian women, which must have been rather elegant as compared with the costumes of the square of Victoria's band. The name of the chief was Sharpandora. The aborigines had just returned from a visit to the far west. He did not like the country. He had visited the Osage tribe. When asked what he thought of them, he answered: "Him heap ugly."

When asked if the people of those days were happy and contented, the Elder answered: "I never have seen a happier people. They were perfectly contented."

"Did they talk in those days much about the progress the country was likely to make?"

"Not much. I have no reason to believe they ever contemplated the great change that has taken place. I often wonder now, in passing through that country and looking upon those large, magnificent farms, why it never occurred to me to purchase some of the land. I could have possessed myself of a nice tract, but the idea never entered my head."

The Elder having for some years officiated in the university at Fort Wayne, his library is largely of textbooks. He has, however, with a vast amount of Methodist literature, much of the exclusively polite and what is known as liberal. Sandwiched between Dr. Clark's "Commentaries" and a classical dictionary was Andrew Jackson Davis' "Harmonist Philosophy." When questioned about the work, he replied, with a merry laugh, that it was a harmless delusion.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Primary Studies.

Children must, when brought under instruction, be taught those things which will benefit them in the common affairs of life. But, what are they? Clearly these:

1. The use of language that they may know how to think and give expression to thought. These they will attain by reading, and by exercises in dictation, letter-writing and composition. Spelling will come in here.
2. The use of the eye, the ear and the hand, both as aids in mental operations and in facilitating the business of life. This use they will acquire by writing, drawing and music, and most industrial arts.
3. How to observe, to reflect, to reason upon a subject, and, to acquire great truths. Here will come in an enlarged system of object-lessons, and the great facts of earth and sky, as illustrated in typical and physical geography, astronomy, and the elements of natural philosophy.
4. How to transact business. Here will come in mental and written arithmetic, simple methods of keeping accurate accounts, the science of forms as taught by geometry in the simpler elements.
5. The discipline and formation of character: And here comes in the subject of morality, of duties to God and man; being the great precept of Christian morals; here the influence of the history of nations and of individuals, as instructive and warning—history in its true significance, civil, social, industrial, rather than warlike and of the hero-worship.
6. The physical discipline of the body: And here comes in a variety of exercises—gymnastics, military, and others—aiding physical development, and preparing for industrial and personal labor.

SAILED—FROZEN TO DEATH.

Terrible sufferings of a Ship's Crew Wrecked on Anticosti Island.

[New York Sun.]

A part of the crew of the bark Bristolian, wrecked at Anticosti on the 22d ult., arrived here last night, and told a fearful tale of hardship. The vessel left port on November 19. Soon after the pilot left the vessel at Bic, on the 20th, bad weather set in, with rain, snow, and sleet, accompanied by heavy gales. This lasted until the evening of the 22d. The vessel then looked like an iceberg. The ropes were frozen in the blocks, and the sails would not bend, so that the ship became unmanageable. A fearful gale was blowing from the northwest, and at about 9 p. m. the vessel struck. Prior to this, Seaman Thomas Smith, aged 19, had been washed overboard and lost. As soon as the vessel struck, the rest of the crew made themselves fast to the rigging aft, expecting every moment to be their last. They were wet through, and benumbed with cold. There was no fire on board nor any means of making one, the vessel having previously had her decks swept and the galley and cook house shifted out of their positions. At about 11 p. m. the vessel's stern began to break up, and the men with difficulty took up a position in the forward part of the ship, where they stored themselves in their wet clothes, exposed to the terrors of the night. In the interval, John Evans of Carnarvon, a Scotchman, aged 22, and D. McQuillen, a lad of 15, were frozen to death. Almost all the rest of the crew were more or less frostbitten.

When day broke it was found that the vessel was two miles from land, halfway between Biccie River and English Bay. The weather was still rough and intensely cold. At 11 a. m. they launched the only boat they had, but, unfortunately, it filled with water. They got into it, however, and bailed it out as they rowed ashore. They landed in a terribly exhausted condition. Seeing a man's footsteps on the ground they followed the tracks for about six miles. Evans, the cook, now showed signs of failing, and died at the foot of an old tree. He was 42 years of age, and has a wife and family living in Liverpool. The rest then resumed their journey, and soon afterward sighted the dwelling of Mr. Gamache, where they were hospitably received and their needs attended to. They remained there ten days, and then started to walk to Ellis Bay, eighteen miles distant. Captain Clements was too ill to walk, and was hauled along on a hand sledge. His feet and hands are badly frozen. At Ellis Bay they embarked in the schooner Wasop for Gaspe. Three of the crew, H. Cogley, William Dunn and William Colcott, being too badly frozen, were left on land. Captain Clements remains at Gaspe until he has fully recovered. The names of those who arrived here are Andrew Nellock, mate; John Jamieson, carpenter; George Busk, Robert Blackall and John Brown, able seamen.

Most of the parties who have been spending Christmas in our city have returned home.

The Social Four club, of the Pittsburg shops, will give their first ball at Arion hall Friday evening.

Sale of seats for Nella Brown's entertainment begins to-morrow morning, at Geo. Fowler's. Tickets 75 cents.

H. G. Wagner has dressed the two young ladies in his drug store in a most magnificent manner and they will be ready to receive visitors in a few days.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Philip Keintz carries his arm in a sling, he was at the ball at Arion hall last evening, and helped furnish the music.

Those of our lady readers who propose to keep open house on New Year's day will greatly oblige THE SENTINEL by sending in their names for publication Friday.

A brakeman on the G. R. & I. railroad, by the name of J. B. Leas, was knocked off a freight train by a bridge, a few miles north of Rome City, and dangerously injured.

Those who prove anything by experience can speak intelligently, and the unanimous testimony of all who use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is that it more than fulfills all that it promises. Price 25 cents.

The Hamilton estate will, probably, in the spring erect a handsome four story brick wagon factory to cover an entire block, for the manufactory of wagons which will be occupied by N. G. Olds & Son.

The workmen employed at the Bass foundry and machine shops took up a collection to aid Mrs. Tagtmeyer, whose husband was killed by a runaway team a few weeks ago, and raised the magnificent sum of $350. This is certainly a commendable action on the part of these men and will redound to their credit here and hereafter.

E. Morey, the insane young man brought here from Chicago, still lingers in our midst, and unless something is done Allen county will have to pay for his keeping. Send him back to Chicago, where he belongs, and let them provide for their own paupers. Our county has fully as much as she is able to do to take care of her own poor.

The young folks of the Baptist church gave a very pleasant entertainment at the church parlors last evening, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, essays, etc., and closed with a veritable "Santa Claus House," as shown in the St. Nicholas. The youngsters enjoyed themselves in a pleasant manner, and deep down in their hearts will ever cherish the kindest remembrances of those who thus furnished them with such a beautiful entertainment.

The public schools will re-open next Monday.

Saturday is the day on which to swear off from all bad habits.

The street cars are doing an immense business as it is too cold to walk.

The case of Coombs vs. the city, came up for trial in the Superior court this afternoon.

Deputy Sheriff Nelson arrested John and Henry Meyers, of Cedarville, Friday, for violating the election laws.

Mr. Monning's term of office as oil inspector terminates June 1, and there are several candidates already in the field pressing their claims.

The superior court held an evening session yesterday in order to get through with the Wells case, but only finished it at 3 o'clock to-day.

The Bear Lake Shooting club are making grand preparations for their ball and game supper and all who attend will certainly enjoy themselves.

The following list of jurymen were drawn to serve for the February term of the circuit court: William Benninghoff, Springfield township; John Baird, Cedar Creek; Henry Weibke, Madison; Dedrich T. Reiser, Madison; John F. Dederich, Marion; William Kennark, Pleasant; Daniel Hoffman, city; H. C. Zollinger, Adams; Henry Zimbro, Aboite; Eli Ringwalt, Milan, and G. H. Oberhalzen, Perry.

In the January term of the superior court the following jurymen will serve: Henry Stelhorn, Milan township; John W. Hippenhamer, Perry; George Gunder, Washington; Lewis Sherer, Marion; Lewis Lynn, city; Nathan J. Johnson, El River; Jas. W. Fleming, Perry; Christian Schlatter, Cedar Creek; Joseph Hood, El River; George V. Kell, El River; Abraham Vanzle, Cedar Creek, and William Miller, city.

How many young men in this city will firmly resolve on New Year's day to abstain from all bad habits for the next year? There are hundreds of them who do this and some will forget their good resolutions ere the setting of the sun; others will carry them out for a week or two and then fall; a few of the stronger ones will stand it for a few months and perhaps not one will be able to say in one year from that time that he has firmly abided by his vow made on the first day of January 1881.

Boys, make good resolutions—something that it is possible to do—and then show your moral courage and stamina and stand by them; should you fall, try again to place yourselves once more on firm footing and try once more to redeem your manhood. You will feel all the better in 1882 if you can say that your resolutions made in 1881 were firmly kept.

THE COURTS.

Superior.

The case of The City of Fort Wayne vs. Delphine Wells was tried by a jury, in the superior court yesterday and to-day, which resulted in a verdict of guilty, and damages to the amount of one cent were assessed.

This case, it will be remembered by readers of THE SENTINEL, was brought by the city against Mrs. Wells for severely whipping Willie Peltier, son of James Peltier, while acting as principle of the Clay Street school, last December.

It will also be remembered that the case was first tried by Mayor Zollinger, who assessed a fine of five dollars on the defendant from which judgment and fine the defendant appealed to the superior court. The proof for the city showed that on or about the 16th of December, 1879, Willie was severely whipped by Mrs. Wells; his back, as shown by the proof when an examination was made after the chastisement, was black and blue from his shoulders down, and his arms and shoulders were covered with welts from the blows given by Mrs. Wells with a rubber strap, about a foot and a half long and an inch wide. The defense introduced evidence showing the conduct of the lad while at school as being very bad, and was whipped after he had refused to read, torn leaves from his book, and refusing to report to the principle when directed so to do by Miss Humphrey, his teacher.

The defense also showed that Willie had said the principle (Mrs. Wells) couldn't whip him, and while she was doing it he struggled with all the strength he possessed. His father had been notified of his conduct, as proven by the defense, two or three times, and he instructed the teacher to punish him, and if he resisted to report him at once.

A Business Man's Opinion.

C. B. Dorr, of Toledo, O., says: "he has used Day's Kidney Pads in his family with results so superior to all other treatments that he regards them as the best kidney doctor in the world."

AMUSEMENTS.

MINNIE PALMER.

This charming and sprightly actress appears at the Grand to-night in the comedy "The Boarding School," and takes the character of Jessie Fairlove, which seems to have been written for her. She is supported by a very strong company. The Chicago press is unanimous in the following endorsement:

"She possesses a petite figure, a face of bewitching sweetness, and a voice free from harshness. She still has youth on her side, and is full of vivacity and life. About the only way to convey an idea to the public as to what she is like, will be to state that she bears a strong resemblance to Lotta when she was about Minnie's age. From this it must not be inferred that Minnie is an imitator; quite the contrary, Minnie's style is original and peculiar to herself. She made a most favorable impression upon her first appearance, which increased until she had fairly won the hearts of the audience. She created constant laughter by her romps and the pranks she played in school. She has been fortunate in securing several very efficient people to support her, and is greatly aided by their efforts."

NELLA F. BROWN.

Of this lady, who gives an entertainment at the Academy of Music, in this city, on Thursday evening, December 30, the Brooklyn, N. Y. Express says:

Miss Nella F. Brown, of Boston, gave an entertainment in Plymouth church, Brooklyn, last evening, and a large audience testified their appreciation in the most enthusiastic manner. Public readers are becoming more numerous than stars in the firmament of heaven. In most cases, alas! the comparison extends no further; but it cannot be denied that Miss Brown is a radiant exception to the average.

ARION HALL.

About one hundred couple enjoyed themselves at Arion hall last evening at the city band ball and tripped the light fantastic to the best music ever brought together in our city at a ball. There were twenty musicians on the platform and each one seemed to think that on his individual merits the success of the ball depended. It is to be regretted that only about one hundred and fifty tickets were disposed of, as our citizens should certainly help keep up such an organization as the City Band, for it is a credit to the whole northern part of the state. A great many of our best citizens were present and all seemed to enjoy themselves to the utmost. The following is the programme as danced:

Part 1.—Grand march, waltz, quadrille, schottische, polka Mazurka, quadrille, waltz, varsovienne, quadrille, polka, quadrille.

Part 2.—Waltz, schottische, quadrille, polka mazurka, waltz, Cecilian circle, polka, varsovienne, quadrille, waltz, galop.

A large and well pleased audience greeted the new faces at the Bijou last evening and welcomed back the favorites, Misses Sadie Hesson and Maggie Bursell. Miss Hesson has a very pleasing voice and engaging manners, which have made her a general favorite with those who have had the pleasure of hearing her. Miss Bursell, in her skipping rope jig and hoop clog, certainly has few superiors, and never fails to bring down the house after each act. The Bassett brothers are good in their horizontal bar acts, and will be favorites with the boys who never tire of witnessing something of that sort. Sillos and Burns are very neat dancers, but do not possess good voices. Geyer and Mackie in their acrobatic dances and eccentric songs, are as good as any talent that has been brought to our city for some time, and were frequently and loudly cheered.

Joe and Annie Burgess are creditable, but do not seem to strike the average Fort Wayneite in the right manner. They may improve, as last night was only the first one, and the entire troupe are strangers to each other. Barretto made quite a hit with his dancing table and barrel. The after piece, "A Banker's Luck," is a racy little comedy, and was well presented.

The Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific railroad is using immense quantities of gravel in ballasting the track near here. Seventy-five car loads per day are being taken from the pit at Peru for this purpose.

Christmas passed off very quietly here, the factories all shut down but stores, banks, and some small shops remained open.

Two leap year parties are announced for this week.

Miss Edith Corwin of Peru was in the city over Sunday.

Charlie Thome returned from an extended trip through Michigan, Saturday.

The city schools open next Monday.

"The Doctor Told Me to take a blue pill, but I didn't, for I had already been poisoned twice by mercury. The druggist told me to try Kidney-Wort, and I did. It was just the thing for my biliousness and constipation, and now I am as well as ever." Torpid kidneys and liver is the trouble for which Kidney-Wort always proves to be the best remedy known.—Hartford Courant.

Oh, for a foot of snow.

The thermometer stood at eight degrees below zero to-day.

There are only eleven prisoners confined in the county jail at the present time.

The school teachers of our city were very much interested in the case of Mrs. Wells, and quite a number of them attended court during the trial.

The Chief grain buyer was badly sold by some naughty young men, who gave him a cigar box filled with saw dust, carefully tied up. The old man smiled all over, thanked the boys and started out on the street to treat his brother buyers. His countenance grew exceedingly long when he opened the box and saw dust ran out. A small boy was hired for a dime to carry the box back with the compliments of the old gentleman.

WABASH.

A New Year Letter from Our Regular Correspondent.

WABASH, Dec. 28.—Mr. Allen W. Smith, for forty-seven years a resident of Wabash, died Friday night of cancer in his last loathsome form.

Mr. Smith was born in Richmond, Indiana, in 1817, and removed to Wabash in 1833, where he has resided ever since, excepting a brief period at Indianapolis. In a public capacity he has served one term in the state legislature and for several years was director of the northern prison at Michigan City. He was well off and one of the most popular citizens of Wabash. It is said that he had not an enemy in the world. For upwards of thirty years a hideous cancer on the right side of his face has been sapping his vitality, and on Christmas eve, at 10:30 o'clock, nature could stand the strain no longer, and he quietly passed away. He leaves a family of five—his wife and four children. The funeral took place Sunday at 1 o'clock, and was one of the largest ever witnessed in Wabash.

A number of Miss Julia Small's friends dropped in and gave her a pleasant surprise Christmas night.
